1. Subject, a well known Romanian engineer, recently came to Rome from Greece. During the course of the first contact with Source, Subject reported:
 - a) To have knowledge of information interesting to the Italian service on Greece and in particular on Rumania.
 - b) During his brief stay in Greece he had been approached several times by British Intelligence Agents who asked him on rosy promises to furnish information in his possession on Rumania.
 - c) Subject did not comply with the B.I.S. request under the pretext of having first to discuss the matter with his superiors resident in Italy prior to revealing information which he believed to be particularly delicate. To this the B.I.S. agents proposed that if the opinion of Subject's superiors is favorable, it would be possible to put him in contact with B.I.S. elements located in Italy or in other European countries.
 - d) Immediately upon arrival in Italy Subject met with the head of the Rumanian opposition in exile, Constantino PAPAHACE, who authorized Subject to report all useful information only to Source or Source's functionaries. In accordance with this Subject began compiling a detailed report which he was to consign to Source.
2. Subject in the first 15 days of August was to move to Paris with the task of organizing Rumanian refugees resident in France.
